

DTEN Wins 2019 Red Dot Best Of The Best Award

D7, the innovative display that integrates video conference with digital whiteboard, receives highest distinction for product design

SAN JOSE, CALIF., April 12, 2019 – DTEN is a 2019 recipient of the prestigious Red Dot: Best of the Best Award for D7, the company's newest interactive video conference display. The Red Dot Award recognizes D7 for innovative product design, including breakthrough technology, inherent functionality and streamlined aesthetics.

"Recognition with the Red Dot: Best of the Best Award validates what we are hearing from our customers: D7 is exceptional in both design and performance," says Wei Liu, founder and CEO of DTEN. "We purposefully developed every feature, every function to allow customers to collaborate better as teams, whether in the same room or a world apart."

Callouts from the award entry include: 4K wide-angle camera to deliver high-definition, face-to-face experiences; 16-elements microphone to achieve "same room" sound quality; plus, natural touch whiteboard to share concepts and content easily.

Another key feature: seamless integration with ZOOM, the recognized leader in providing remote conferencing telecommunications.

Red Dot Awards are highly sought-after international recognitions. In 2019, designers and manufacturers from 55 countries entered more than 5,500 products for consideration. D7 was among only 1.5% of the entries selected for the Best of the Best honor.

"Consumers can rely on the first-class design quality of the winning products, because they were tested and selected by an experienced jury according to strict assessment criteria," said Dr. Peter Zec, founder and CEO of Red Dot.

Kent Zeng served as D7's principal designer. "The goal for the DTEN team is to always move the needle forward to improve user experience," continues Wei Liu. "D7 balances innovation with simplicity, quality with functionality, aesthetics with affordability."
